CAMP MOURNS PASSING OF EDWARD ELLIOTT

With the deepest regret we are called upon this week to record the passing of Edward Elliott, long-time resident here. Death occurred on Wednesday evening in the McDougall hospital after only a short illness.

Mr. Elliott was born in England in 1889 and came to Canada in 1913. He came to Chapman Camp in 1923, having accepted employment at the Concentrator and has been here steadily since that time. He is survived by Mrs. Elliott and one daughter, Jean.

Mr. Elliott was among the most highly respected residents of this village, a most capable workman and very popular with all with whom he came in contact. His passing leaves a gap in our community that will be hard to fill. Through these columns we would like to express our deepest sympathies to those left behind to mourn the loss of a kind, loving husband and father.—Kimberley Courier.

There are three kinds of people in all organizations. There are the rowboat people, the sailboat people, and the steamboat people. The rowboat people always need to be pushed or shoved along. The sailboat people move along when a favorable wind is blowing. But the steamboat people move along continuously through calm or storm; they are masters of themselves and their surroundings.

Members of the families and a few friends were present at the ceremony and at the wedding supper served afterwards at the Airdrome Cafe in Macleod.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed left by car for a short honeymoon to be spent at Vancouver, after which they will take up residence at 162 Hope Street, Calgary.

SEER PROTECTION

GROUP CAR DRIVERS

Exemption of drivers of private cars from damage claims by passengers in case of accidents has been urged by the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Motor Association.

A resolution urging the provincial government to amend the Motor Vehicles and Highway Traffic act to provide for this exemption was passed at the annual meeting of the branch, held recently. The resolution is expected to be discussed at the annual meeting of the A.M.A., which will be held in Calgary December 12th.

The exemption would not apply to car drivers who are operating vehicles for public service purposes or for gain or profit. But it is felt that in these times, when private car owners are being urged to share their cars with others and adopt the "group riding" idea, such drivers should have proper protection in case of accidents.

No doubt many drivers, feeling that they had proper protection in the event of accidents, would be more inclined to share their cars with others if the suggested amendments were made to the provincial act.

The A.M.A. branch also suggests that federal action should be taken to enable capital to be made available or other steps taken that would encourage the search for oil in Alberta. With conservation being required by war conditions, there is a strong need for still greater fuel production.

Accidents Help The Axis

—Courtesy Canadian Pacific Railways

Despite educational campaigns by the railways and the Government, Canada in the fourth year of the war, continues to pay too high a price for human folly and carelessness. Accidents at railway crossings in Canada for the first eight months of 1942 numbered 219, with a toll of 87 killed and 255 injured. Death, in the above drawing, watches the crossing, her fruitful hunting ground, to snatch up the innocent babe who has paid the price of folly. Statistics show that these accidents can be prevented by observing elementary rules of safety.

Something Unusual

Famous Actor's Performance Described By New Kind Of Critic William Faversham was playing in "The Squaw Man" in St. Louis. The dramatic critic on a certain morning newspaper described in considerable detail how Faversham washed his hair and the way his neck was shaved. His acting was scarcely mentioned. Later in the week a cub reporter on the same journal interviewed the actor and among other things, inquired, "What did you think of the criticism of your play in our paper?"

"Well," replied Faversham, "I have played 'The Squaw Man' in every important city in the United States, but this is the first time a barber was ever sent to criticize the play."

Lesson: Matthew 18:15-17; Acts 1:8; 2:42; 8:3-4; 11:27-30; 13:1-3; 1 John 1:3.

Devotional Reading: Galatians 6: 1-10.

Explanations and Comments

Church Government, Matthew 18: 15-17. These verses describe three ways of a church dealing with a member who sins. One who is guilty of a moral offense and thus brings dishonor upon the church and upon his Master should first be exposed to the private rebuke of one who knows about the offense or who has suffered because of it. "He owes the trespassing brother the charitable deed of fraternal remonstrance, for the greater can put his head to the reproach he who thus brings home to him his fault will have gained a friend."

It is no light task to rebuke an erring brother, but it must be done in a kind spirit and in a helpful way, and many there are who should never attempt it. It requires the greatest tact and is undertaken with the full and right knowledge of what has been the wrong committed. In Luke's Gospel Jesus says, "If thy brother sin, rebuke him;" but in the next sentence he commands, "forgiveness no fewer than seven times."

If the erring brother will not listen to the admonition then let the group method be tried, let two or more join in rebuking him. Many do not realize that Jesus would have counseled a man to tell other church members of a "sin against himself."

"He that goeth out of a door into another street; but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth a matter."

We are old in Proverbs. A sin, however, that must be openly confessed known to the church if the sinner does not reform, should next be dealt with by three or more church members.

Should the second method, too, fail, then the church must recur to the church. The church is the final court of appeal. If the sinner is still unmoved, unrepentant, then let him be told by the General and the publican, that he let the church have nothing further to do with him, let him be excommunicated.

The Source of Power and the Great Commission of the Church, Acts 1:8, was promised his disciples that power would be given them, and that they were to continue his work, bear witness for him in Jerusalem and all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

CHAPTER VII

Anne worriedly wondered if the man who had come to the veranda was more than the transfer of money from her handbag to Jud's grasp. She didn't seem possible that the girl could have been having conversation 40 feet or space separated the spot where Jud and Anne stood from the verandah where Rhea Marshall was, and they had kept their low—like the conspirators they were.

The Harmons came from Halfway House, and into town, Anne said to Jud, "Go around to the back if you want something to eat. Tell the cook I sent you."

Jud muttered, "Yes'm," and roused himself from his leaning against the wagon's fender. He said, "Come along, the yellow dog followed him.

Anne saw the Harmons into camp, then got behind the wheel. Driving along the lonely road to Sand Flat she replied to the Harmon's conversation in monosyllables. Her mind grappled with the problem that she had to make out to change the whole course of her life. She had heard him mention that one of the guests at Halfway House had hidden himself in the Lowry girl's car, the guest dressed in prisoner's clothing, but she had not heard him speak.

The tramp had gone around to the rear of the lodge, and she walked in the same direction. She found the man at the rest porch talking to a girl in a chef's uniform apron. Light from the doorway gave her a clear picture of the tramp's face. It was as unattractive a face as Rhea Marshall's.

The cook grunted. "All right, I'll give you something—if Miss Lowry said so. Wait here, and I'll hand it out to you." And she disappeared with the tramp's dog who first aware of Rhea; the creature came to her whimpering. She said, "Nice dog, and fond of her. I guess he's a good dog." The cook turned to men to guess that one way into the tramp's confidence was through a show of friendliness to his dog. She was right.

"Wolf always likes pretty women," he said. "But there aren't many pretty women that like him. I reckon you're different from Miss Lowry. She can't stand Wolf near her."

"But he's such a nice dog," said Rhea Marshall.

"The next friend I got," came the reply. "I might say, the only friend. Yew, Wolf is sure a good dog."

The cook returned, handed out a meal, and giving thanks after an uncertain moment he returned to his work.

Along with the tramp and his dog, Rhee said, "Do you live here in the mountains, or are you just passing through?"

"I live over near Sand Flats, mom. I got a little cabin in the timber."

"I guess you know most everyone here in this part of the country, don't you?"

"Everybody who belongs here?"

"Nope. She just came here a couple of weeks ago to open Halfway House. I saw her in Sand Flats a couple of times."

Rhee lowered her voice, moved a step closer to where the man sat on the doorway steps. "Did you actually see her when the man in prisoner's chain stood himself in her car?"

The man shot her a look. He deliberately selected a morsel from the plate and tossed it to the dog. When the girl's eyes met his, he rose and faced the girl. He rubbed the back of his hand across his mouth, and when that came away he crooked his fingers to him. He knew she was grinning foolishly, entering the house and introducing Anne to his fellow rangers and the two women who were there.

He said, "I'll go about her. Miss Lowry told me, 'He's a guest here now.' She paused a moment, watching intently, then said, 'I'm as anxious as she is not to have any one know her here. You're sure you won't tell anyone?'

"You making me an offer, ma'am?" Rhea Marshall shrugged. She had merely meant to satisfy foolish curiosity, but she didn't know whether she wanted to pay for that satisfaction.

The man saw her waning interest. He said shrewdly, "I guess that kind of ranger would get a chuck out of the prisoner he's keeping here, him going about with Miss Lowry at the same time."

The girl gave a start, though not because of what he said. Her voice cracked. She said, her voice evidently ragged, "What ranger-fellow?"

"Why, Steve Hayes. The forest ranger over from Squaw Creek." Miss Lowry saw one another."

"Sure. Didn't you know?"

Rhee Marshall didn't answer. She was silent a long time, and a sultry heat was in her dark eyes. Then she said, "How would you like to make $50?"

Jud rubbed his hands together, smiling. "I'll get the money. Meet me around by the verandah steps. I'll be there in five minutes."

She said, "I'll get away, and there was a tightness about her mouth, full and smiling lips. Her dark eyes were bright with a cold glitter.

Steve Hayes came from the administrative building when the station driver drove into the Squaw Creek Ranger Station. Anne was later than he had expected, but during the hour or so of waiting for her he had been for once more or less relaxed, but that still could soon be. He opened the door as the car stopped, and in and kissed her without warning. She was aware that her response was half-spoken, and a moment later when she got out he noticed a look of worry in her eyes.

"Something wrong, honey?" he asked.

"Nothing," Anne replied. "It tell you Steve has been a gay dog in his time, you can depend on it."

He showed her then, the damage done, and Anne was deeply sorry, but a faintly amused smile. He felt suddenly warm and embarrassed. Somebody had put a record on the radio, and he stopped dancing.

"It was fun dancing with Anne. Steve liked her in his arms. He told himself that nothing was going to happen to her now."

"Stop looking so guilty, darling," Anne said. "You'll really make me think you were the Bluebeard Bill McRae says."

"Remember, Anne," Bill said. "Sometime there'll be a skeleton in my Bluebeard's closet," he told her. And it will be Bill McRae's."

It was almost midnight when Jim Hanley, the junior forester on duty that night, came over from the administration building. His arrival had an immediate dampening effect on the party, who seemed to realize he wouldn't have come unless something had happened.

Hanley said, "Jack Purdy radioed to us that we'd better be on the lookout for Indians in the area. There was a blizzard by Indian Lake. There was a lot of lightning, shooting about, so he thinks there must have been a strike but he didn't see it from his truck. I thought I'd come up to him. He knew I was grinning foolishly, entering the house and introducing Anne to his fellow rangers and the two women who were there.

He said, "I'll go about her. Miss Lowry told me, 'He's a guest here now.' She paused a moment, watching him intently, then said, 'I'm as anxious as she is not to have any one know her here. You're sure you won't tell anyone?'

"Sure. Didn't you know?"

Rhee Marshall didn't answer. She was silent a long time, and a sultry heat was in her dark eyes. Then she said, "How would you like to make $50?"

Jud rubbed his hands together, smiling. "I'll get the money. Meet me around by the verandah steps. I'll be there in five minutes."

She said, "I'll get away, and there was a tightness about her mouth, full and smiling lips. Her dark eyes were bright with a cold glitter.

Intercept Clara Bates coming in with a tray of cocktails. By chance, unluckily chance, Anne overheard his silly remark. She asked him, "Anne, when did you always know how to pick a boy?"

She was laughing; the greeting his smile was a bit strained, but she had rubbed that worried or tired look from her eyes. Steve tried to grin back.

"Bill McRae talks a lot and never says anything," he said.

Bill had taken the tray from their hostess. He came up with it now, offering a cocktail to Anne. "What is Steve trying to tell you about me?"

"He says that isn't true, about his always knowing how to pick fifty girls."

"Remember, Anne," Bill said. "We got no necessity to lie to her. If I tell you Steve has been a gay dog in his time, you can depend on it."

He showed her then, the damage done, and Anne was deeply sorry, but a faintly amused smile. He felt suddenly warm and embarrassed.

Somebody had put a record on the radio, and he stopped dancing.

"It was fun dancing with Anne. Steve liked her in his arms. He told himself that nothing was going to happen to her now."

"Stop looking so guilty, darling," Anne said. "You'll really make me think you were the Bluebeard Bill McRae says."

"Remember, Anne," Bill said. "Sometime there'll be a skeleton in my Bluebeard's closet," he told her. And it will be Bill McRae's."

NO MAN IS INDISPENSABLE

I care not what your place may be—
A job that's most laborious,
With mighty little salary.

Or one that's fat and glorious!
But, be your labor great or small,
Of this you may be sensible—
Some other man can do it all;
No man is indispensable!

When you begin to swell with pride;
And cates to the gallery;
And put on lots of "dog" and "sje";
Because they've raised your salary;
Why, then's the time you'll tumble quick,

Such ways are indefensible;
Some other man can do your trick;
No man is indispensable!

It's well enough to know your worth,
And just what to do with it;
But don't imagine that the earth
Will quit when you're through with it;

No, it will race upon its way,
And—what seems reprehensible—
Some other man will draw your pay;
No man is indispensable!

LIFE OF A SHIRT

A member of the W.A.A.F. must make a shirt last a year, but an R.A.F. man can get a new one after the months' wear, under a new Air Ministry order. The reason for the difference is that the men do much of their work in their shirt sleeves.

The length of life expected for other garments in the two services is: R.A.F.—Socks, four months; boots, six months; trousers, six months; cap, nine months; ties, nine months; vests, nine months; jackets, nine months; great coats, four years.

W. A. A. F.—Stockings, six weeks; suspender belts, nine months; jackets, nine months; pyjamas, two years; coats, nine months.

All garments are to be stamped with the date of issue, and they will be exchanged even at the time limit, only if they are unserviceable. Part-worn and renovated garments will be issued in many cases instead of new ones.—Bulletins from Britain.

"Home-Town Stuff"

comes first in the major market!

That's why the "home-town" Weekly Newspaper comes first in the reading and buying minds of the 7,750,000 consumers in Canada's smaller communities who make 69% of the country's retail sales.

The Weekly Newspaper is the one paper that is read and discussed by the whole family. Its "home-town" news is about people they know. Its "home-town" editorials deal with matters of intimate interest to them. Its "home-town" advertisements by local dealers are based on friendly knowledge of their products.

The circulation of Canadian Weekly Newspapers in Canada's 69% "home-town" major market total 2,800,000. That's coverage for you. But coverage is only half the story. The secret of the success enjoyed by advertisers using the Weekly Newspapers lies in the fact that the Weekly Newspaper—and only the Weekly Newspaper—can offer the sales-making friendly introduction which builds regular users of a product.

Canadian Weekly Newspapers are first in reader interest and first in sales influence in Canada's 69% major market.

A MISSIONARY

IN HONAN, CHINA

(Extracts from letter dated August 18, 1942)

"You wouldn't know me; I have gotten so thin! We get enough to eat, but the quality is not very good. Can't even get lard now. Rice being so expensive, many people did not raise pigs or chickens; I miss butter. Everything is frighteningly expensive, $25 for a small chicken, eggs 60 cents each, fish $6 a chin, $65 for a small cake of palm olive soap. The local flour is poor and so our bread is very bad during the heat. I never give the cook less than $100 a week for street buying... Many people spend the whole day in the country. The siren sounds at 6 a.m. for them to scatter and the release comes about 4.30 p.m. Another bad bombing on June 30th, at least 1,000 killed and wounded. Planes came very early in the morning and caught the people, before they had time to get out."

"Will hold your place"

IN EVERY city, town and village throughout Canada today there are gaps where once were young men. They heard a call and put on navy blue, khaki, horizon blue, and they have gone, answering a call . . .

They are missed—missed not only in their homes but also in the business places which once they filled.

They have gone from every institution in Canada; but from none more than from the chartered banks. There is hardly a branch office from coast to coast which is not today, the poorer—and the prouder—for those who thus laid down their pens.

But every branch manager, as he shook parting hands, had this consolation: he could say, "We'll hold your place. It will be waiting for you when you come back. That is a pledge."

So it is the part of those who remain to serve their country in such a way that the promise may be kept: "We'll hold your place."

There were 14,433 single and married men from 18 to 45 years of age employed by the Chartered Banks at the outbreak of war, 5,053—or 35% of them had joined the armed forces by October 31st, 1942; 1,243 others who joined bank staffs since war began have also enlisted.

Scottish girls working in the Mid-lands munitions factories enjoy their work, but don't get enough Scotch broth or any suds in their porridge.

St. Anne's bazaar, held in the Columbus hall on Wednesday afternoon of this week was as usual well attended and patronized. There were tables laden with such articles as hand-embroidery cutwork, aprons, home cooking, Christmas novelties; also grab boxes, popcorn, fish pond, etc., for the kiddies. In the evening there were bingo and other attractions.

ORDER EARLY for Christmas this Year!

While we are endeavouring to secure adequate supplies of Catalogue lines, we are finding that shortages of materials and wartime restrictions are making it increasingly difficult; coupled with this, we are faced with a very definite shortage of workers, due mainly to heavy enlistments in the armed forces and also to the demands of war industries for more and more people.

In view of these conditions and to avoid disappointment and delay, order early for your Christmas needs. We, for our part, of course, will continue to give all our customers the best possible service and fill orders promptly.

There's Only One Master-Key to the Major Market!

It's the Weekly Newspapers in the towns and villages of Canada—the only publications whose contents are written with instinctive, intimate, friendly confidence and understanding by the people who make 69% of the nation's retail purchases.

It is that which the Weekly Newspapers and their millions of earnest readers have in common—their purely local interests, their essentially personal relationships and in many respects their actual interdependence in the "home town" scheme of things—that makes the Weeklies such an influence for sales right on "Main Street" where the 69% of the country's retail sales are made.

The Weekly Newspapers bring the advertiser, the dealer and the consumer more closely, more effectively together in the smaller communities, and do it more economically, than any other sales-building medium.

When planning your 1942 advertising budget, be sure to have all the facts about the demand and scope of the Weekly Newspapers in Canada's 69% major market. Write, now, for precise information.

NEW BILL MAKES DUCK ROSSEYED

A plastic bill has made a mallard duck in the Chauncey Depew Memorial Park cross-eyed. The duck lost part of its bill in a battle with a snapping turtle. Dr. Robert Poritsky, a dentist, made him a new one of plastic and wire, but when Doc Poritsky called to see if his patient, he was cross-eyed, due to looking at his bill too much.

Navigational Problem Solved.

The ship's officers were engaged in a large discussion as to the reason why they had been able to return from Iceland in two days less time than the period of their outward journey. A young seaman who overheard this discussion remarked: "Excuse me, sir, but I think I know the reason."

He was asked to explain. "May I see an atlas?" he asked. The atlas was brought. "Why," he declared, "it is quite simple. Can't you see for yourselves? Iceland is up there, and Glasgow here—it is all downhill coming back."

CHURCHILL QUICK ON COMEBACK

London, Nov. 22.—Lady Montgomery, 78-year-old mother of General Sir Bernard Montgomery, commander of the rapidly advancing British Eighth Army in Libya, telegraphed him birthday greetings on Monday and said: "I am tempted to address it to Tripoli!" Sir Bernard, who is 51, told Prime Minister Churchill before he was appointed to the command: "I don't smoke, I don't drink, and I am 100 per cent fit." Military circles say Mr. Churchill replied: "I smoke, I drink, and I am 200 per cent fit." Mr. Churchill will be 68 on November 30th.

Successful Victory Loan

BY OVER SUBSCRIBING the recent Victory Loan, Canadians showed that without doubt they are solidly behind the men in the armed services, and the war effort at home. This was the third time that the people of Canada have been asked to subscribe their savings for war purposes, and the drive came at a time when taxes are heavier and are affecting a greater part of our population than ever before in our history. Yet more people subscribed to this loan than to any previous one and it is said that many of those who bought bonds in this drive were investing in war savings for the first time. Over subscribed by more than two hundred million dollars, the loan, which opened with an objective of $750,000,000 was described by those in charge of it, as the most successful one ever held. The conclusion of the loan campaign coincided with the beginning of the great Allied offensive in Egypt and North Africa and its reaffirmed the faith of the Canadian people in the cause for which we are fighting, and their conviction in a final victory for the United Nations.

Voluntary Work Is Appreciated

Officials in charge of the loan have drawn attention to the many voluntary services given by people in all walks of life in the promotion of the loan campaign and to the active work selling the bonds. All across Canada, these people give freely of their time and to them should be given credit for the success of the drive. Canadian entertainers, joined on numerous occasions by outstanding personalities from the United States, worked hard, at no personal gain, to keep the loan before the public. Thanks were likewise expressed to the churches and the press across Canada for emphasizing the importance of the loan. In every community, large numbers of men and women, many of them very busy with affairs of their own, spent long hours canvassing homes and offices in selling the bonds. To all these people gratitude is due for the success of the loan, and they may feel that they have made a very important contribution to Canada's part in the winning of the war.

Bonds Regarded As A Trust

From many sources has come a plea to purchasers of these bonds to regard them as a wartime trust and to retain them except in cases of extreme necessity. There are instances in which investors have found it hard to maintain the standard of self-denial they set for themselves when purchasing their bonds, and they have subsequently withdrawn their money. While these bonds may be easily transformed into cash when money is urgently needed, investors are asked to remember at all times the purpose of the loan, and to refrain from cashing in the bonds, at least until the war is won. Not only is it important to the war effort that this money be left with the government, but it is also to the interest of the investors to leave it there. While every investor will be entitled to his money back in full, it is likely that there will be a period of readjustment for many workers, and a reserve of war savings may prove to be of practical as well as patriotic value. "Nothing Matters Now But Victory" was the slogan of the drive and Canadians showed that they were solidly behind this sentiment when they so enthusiastically over-subscribed the large objective set for them.

Vitamins Are Temperamental!

Many mothers believe that because they and their families consume the prescribed amount of green vegetables, meat and fruit each day they are accordingly obtaining the basic proportion of essential vitamins. Actually, they may be falling far short of their needs. Vitamins are temperamental, and can be wholly or partially destroyed by wrong cooking methods and by storing fruits and vegetables after they have been harvested. Fancy foods that go through several cooking processes before they reach the table (even so common a procedure as boiling potatoes and then frying them) lose some of their vitamins in each operation. Many vitamins, too, are carried off in steam from over-boiled foods.

- Here are a few simple rules for preserving vitamins in cooked foods:

 - (1) Use a minimum amount of cooking water.
 - (2) Cook in covered vessels for as short a time as possible.
 - (3) Avoid stirring.
 - (4) Never add baking soda.
 - (5) Add vitamins to the water.
 - (6) Serve the cooking liquids in soups.
 - (7) Handle fruits and vegetables as little as possible.
 - (8) Use a brush to clean vegetables rather than a knife to scrub them.
 - (9) Cook them in their natural state (i.e. potatoes in jackets) as far as practicable.

Shredding, cutting and dicing of fruits and vegetables can result in loss of Vitamin C. It is best to do this shortly before serving. Fruits and vegetables should be stored in the refrigerator until required. Both B and C vitamins are soluble in water and you can get the most out of them by serving the juices they're cooked in. Vitamin B1 and also Vitamin C are allergic to alkali. Baking soda added to cooking will cause them to deteriorate.

In observing these few rules housewives will be sure that the valuable vitamins that are needed by the members of her family are not being needlessly lost.

NEWS of your Army
From Directors of Public Relations Army

(By Lieut. Clair Ganong, Public Relations Officer)

For the first time Canadian women soldiers started for overseas where war is real and grim. One hundred and nine personnel of the Canadian Women's Army Corps left Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Que., for an Eastern Canadian port. Their head was Capt. Frances "Dime" Riley, of Winnipeg, who has been in the service overseas for a year and a half, and at the head of No. 3 platoon was Lieut. Gloria Queen-Hughes, of Halifax and Winnipeg, whose husband is a prisoner of war in Hong Kong.

Subsistence allowance paid to War Office Officers, N.C.O.s, and men and corresponding ranks of the C.W.A.C. for the Army have been increased from $1 to $1.25 a day effective from October 1, 1942.

Thirty more members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, headed by 2nd Lieut. Enid Clark, of Vancouver, B.C., have left for Washington, D.C. Ten of the girls will be posted to the Inspection Board of the United Kingdom and Canada, and the remainder will be posted to the British Army staff in clerical capacities.

Canadian parachute troops are to receive a special rate of pay, according to an announcement by Defence Minister Ralston. All Armies give their paratroopers a flat rate. Officers and men who volunteer for parachute training will receive this extra pay from the day they join the unit.

Defence Minister Ralston has announced the appointment of Mr. Leo Cadieux as Associate Director of Information (French) for the Army. Mr. Cadieux, who has been appointed Assistant Director of Public Relations (French) for the Army, Major J. E. Geoffrey Waddington, Canada's best known musical director in connection with early commercial radio programs, has been appointed musical director of "The Army Show," the official Canadian Army entertainment troupe now being organized, and Jack Arthur, prominent stage and musical producer, has been appointed Consultant Producer, and chairman of the Advisory Council for the show.

Drastic steps to conserve electricity have been initiated in recent months by the Department of National Defence. Defence Minister Ralston has revealed. Not only are rigid controls being imposed on consumption of electricity in all buildings controlled by National Defence Headquarters in Ottawa, but throughout

They were unsuccessful, however, quite possibly because in those days blood wasn't typed or the method of infusion was too crude. But the ancient Roman physician still had the right idea.

EVEN BUSIEST LADY CAN GROW THESE PLANTS

Decoration For All The House

You'd love to decorate your home with flowers, but don't know how to take care of them? Many beautiful plants take care of themselves. In almost any spot, one or another will grow.

Sprays of Chinese evergreen and philodendron grow in a low water-filled bowl; make a lovely centerpiece for your table. Just rinse bowl and add fresh water once a week.

Dracaena tall, with variegated foliage, does well even where there's little light. Place it on a fire place or a stone step landing. So does sansevieria, which grows for months without drainage.

Flowering plants, of course, require more care, but not too exacting. Jerusalem cherry is so colorful with its gay red fruit, takes only sunlight and protection from drafts and heat.

It's easy to brighten your home with plants! Our 32-page booklet describes simple care of many lovely foliage and flowering house plants, including palms, flowering maple, cyclamen. Tell how to grow vines, ferns, bulbs.

Send 15c in coin for your copy of "Making Plants and Flowers Grow" by Mrs. Helen G. Morris, Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermitt Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and name of booklet.

Marshal Pétain Has Taken Stand Against Allies

London.—On orders of their commanding officer, Gen. Barre, French troops in Tunisia opened a general attack on German and Italian occupying forces in support of Allied occupying columns sweeping into the protectorate from the west, the Morocco radio reported.

Even as the rush of French forces to the allied side promised to become a flood, aged Marshal Pétain over the German-controlled Vichy radio was reiterating his order to them to resist "Anglo-Saxon aggression" and to disregard the orders of their "unworthy chief," Admiral Darlan, and other French leaders.

From Oran, French troops who only a week ago were fighting bravely against Allied landing forces were en route east to join their new French and British allies in the co-ordinated drive to smash the last remaining Axis armies in North Africa. In full battle gear, the Oran division entrained after a parade down the honor all formed by United States infantrymen.

Gen. Barre, the report said, was handed an ultimatum by the German commander, Gen. Nehring, ordering the French either to withdraw from Tunisia or join the Axis in the fast-gathering battle against Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's British 1st army.

Spurning the German threat that he would be attacked if he failed to comply, the report said, Gen. Barre ordered his principal force to attack first. The French troops wherever possible joined the British and American advance elements in preliminary skirmishes with Axis forces defending Tunisia, the capital city, and Bizerte, the great French naval stronghold.

Gen. Barre notified the German commander that he would defend himself in accordance with orders received from Admiral Jean Darlan and Gen. Henri Giraud, French leaders co-operating with British and American occupation forces. The German radio intimated that the French Tunisian commander had joined the Allies.

Marshal Philippe Pétain called on all Frenchmen in North Africa "to resist the Anglo-Saxon aggression," and Fighting French sources here saw this as fresh evidence of Dictator Pierre Laval's calculated efforts to steel his country into outright military alliance with Germany.

The 86-year-old marshal, who gave Laval full political powers and designated him as his heir presumptive, said in a broadcast from Axis-occupied Vichy:

"Frenchmen: General officers in the service of a foreign power refuse to obey my orders. General officers, non-commissioned officers, soldiers of the French army: Do not obey these unworthy leaders."

The order was referred to Admiral Jean Darlan, noted successor to Pétain and Laval's political enemy, who has gone over to the Allies in North Africa, and other French leaders such as Gen. Henri Giraud who escaped from a Nazi prison and then from Vichy to fight again.

"I reiterate to you the order to resist the Anglo-Saxon aggression," continued the aged marshal whose prestige derived mainly from fighting the Germans at Verdun in the First Great War.

"We live tragic hours. Disorder reigns in minds. You hear news which has no other aim but to injure and to weaken you."

"The truth, however, is simple. It is necessary that you submit to the discipline that I exact from each of you or you endanger your country. You have but one government; that to which I have given the power to govern. You have but one country which I incarnate: France."

TO CONSERVE OIL EQUIPMENT

Calgary.—Drastic means to conserve oil well equipment in Canada and U.S. so that it may be put to the greatest possible advantage were announced. The Alberta Petroleum Association was notified by Harold L. Ickes, U.S. petroleum co-ordinator for war, that all oil well casing and tubing and casing in both U.S. and Canada will be pooled.

MORE CZECHS EXECUTED

London.—Czech government sources said that 40 executions within five days had been reported from Prague in a new wave of Nazi terrorism which they believed was intended to curb the enthusiasm of Czechs over Allied successes in Africa.

PACIFIC OPERATIONS

Gen. Blamey Conducting Campaign Against Japanese

Melbourne.—Prime Minister John Curtin disclosed that General Sir Thomas Blamey has been personally conducting operations against the Japanese in New Guinea since the formation of his headquarters there Sept. 22.

He said Sir. Thomas and his United States-Australian staff officers had personally reconnoitered terrain selected for operations, flying and landing in areas the greater portions of which then were in enemy hands.

Curtin said United States and Australian land, sea and air forces had shared credit for victorious thrusts against the Japanese.

Oran Harbor Is Being Cleared Of Scuttled Ships

Oran, Algeria.—The French lost eight cruisers, four destroyers and two submarines in the Oran area. Six ships were scuttled in the bottleneck of the harbor just before Oran capitulated, 200 yards inside the boom. Fourteen more ships, a 600-foot drydock and several drydocks were sunk farther inside the long, narrow harbor.

One destroyer burned after being beached between Oran and Arzew. The Germans lost a submarine.

British and American salvage experts are rapidly clearing a path through the mass of scuttled vessels, permitting the landing of sizable American reinforcements in Oran harbor. Other reinforcements have been landed near Oran.

The harbor is jammed with American troops, including negroes. Supply ships are unloading.

The signing of an agreement under which the Oran department of the French army will join the Allies was believed imminent.

(British United Press correspondent C. R. Cunningham has since reported from Allied North African headquarters that a French unit in Oran has joined the U.S. garrison staff.)

Negotiations for a final agreement to replace the armistice have been going on for days.

"Everything has been working out exactly as we had hoped," a pro-Allied French officer said.

The agreement was expected to lead to a crack-down on pro-Fascist French elements. Two Arab villages were raided by French police searching for arms. They found none, but sniping went on in Oran harbor.

It was understood that any action against guerrilla activities that may break out will come from the French, supported by Americans.

French General

Gen. Henri Giraud, noted French commander who escaped from a German prison last spring, has arrived in Algeria to organize French forces in Africa against the Axis.

JAPANESE CASUALTIES

Chungking.—The Chinese national military council puts Japanese casualties on the China front at 2,500,000 men. The figure covers the period from 1937 to October, 1942. The council also announces that a Japanese puppet commander in southern Hunan province has deserted to the Chinese with 2,000 men, rifles and supplies.

BOMBING RAIDS

Italian Production Centers Likely To Receive Attention

Washington.—Members of the Pacific war council said there was a possibility that "mass bombing" raids would be directed at production centers in northern Italy.

Walter Nash, New Zealand's minister to the United States, spoke of the North African campaign as opening the way for Italy to receive some of the devastating raids by heavy industries, comparable to those the R.A.F. has directed on German war plants, with what he termed "amazing" effectiveness.

Gathering at the White House, the representatives of the nations actively engaged in the war in the Pacific said it was perhaps their most significant meeting.

Leighton McCarthy, the Canadian minister, suggested that probably the raids would originate in England, but Nash said any available jumping-off points might be used.

The New Zealander said they had deviated considerable time to what he termed the "ninth front," which he said was the air front. They also anticipated, he said, other fronts leading up to the ninth.

He listed the fronts as the Solomon Islands, New Guinea, the Middle East, North Africa, Burma, China, the Pacific islands, the Atlantic and the bombing front. In addition, he said, the Russians alone are fighting on six fronts.

SEED GRAIN

Temporary Suspension Of Shipments From West To East

Ottawa.—Temporary suspension of rail shipments of seed grain from western country stations to eastern Canada has been ordered by the Canadian wheat board, it was learned here.

Ottawa sources said the order had been imposed because some cars shipped directly from prairie country points had contained a large amount of dockage, ranging from one to 26 per cent. in various cars.

Only limited quantities had been shipped from country points, as most of the seed grain went through the terminal elevators at the Lakehead and was cleaned there.

Another factor in imposing the order was the need of railway car space for the movement of feed grain to eastern Canada.

Allied Losses In African Convoys Reported Small

London.—An authoritative source said that losses in the Allied convoys used for the expedition in French North Africa were remarkably small despite the enemy's known concentration of 50 submarines against that operation alone.

His statement was made in predicting further important naval operations in the Mediterranean.

Except for one ship, all vessels in the Allied convoys had landed troops and material where they were damaged, the informant said.

Prime Minister Churchill announced that 13 enemy submarines had been sunk off North Africa. Others have been reported damaged.

The informant, who cannot be named, said it was indicated that at least 50 Axis submarines were between Gibraltar and Bizerte during the passage of the first Allied convoys and this number later was increased to 50. It has been indicated alternatively that 850 surface vessels, warships and merchantmen—took part in the vast African expedition.

British submarines, he continued, are giving the same attention to Axis efforts to reinforce the contingents in Tunisia as they did to Marshal Rommel's earlier efforts to get supplies across the Mediterranean to his forces in Egypt. He predicted it would be difficult from a supply standpoint for the Axis to maintain a foothold in Africa. Bengasi, he said, has been "immobilized" as a supply point, and Tripoli, the chief Axis base in Libya, "no doubt" will be dealt with pretty thoroughly by our strong air forces which are daily acquiring bases closer and closer to that point."

Alcan Highway Is Described As A Splendid Job

Whitehorse, Y.T.—Archie McEachern of Whitehorse, who drove the first civilian passenger automobile over the Alaska highway from Dawson Creek, B.C., to Whitehorse, in an interview here described the road as "a really good job for the time they have been working on it."

McEachern, assistant district airway engineer for Canadian department of transport, was accompanied by brother Fred McEachern, of Edmonton. Both formerly lived in Regina.

Civilian traffic on the road is prohibited until after the war. McEachern's trip was authorized as an essential wartime business. The "pioneer" road from Dawson Creek to Fairbanks was begun last March by United States army engineers. War Secretary Henry Stimson announced in October traffic was moving over all sections weeks ahead of schedule.

McEachern arrived at Whitehorse four days after leaving Edmonton Nov. 13, and said his actual driving time was 60 hours. His speedometer registered 1,525 miles but McEachern said about 1,500 miles of road was still to cover. McEachern said completion of the road was "amazing. The bulk of the road not started before August 1, and the first preliminary trail was not into Watson Lake until September 3." McEachern made the trip in a late model sedan.

COAL SHORTAGE

Ask For Release Of Miners In Military Training Camps

Edmonton.—Utilization of Alberta miners now in military training camps to work in mines to relieve Alberta's acute coal shortage has been suggested to federal authorities. It was announced by Walter S. Campbell, regional administrator for the wartime prices board here.

He said he had learned there were many such miners now in military camps. He believed their temporary release to work in the mines would do much to relieve the coal situation. Meanwhile, Edmonton coal dealers said that only through the absence of sub-zero weather during the next several days can a serious situation be avoided in the city. The dealers are working at three weeks behind with deliveries and are flooded with orders from householders and business blocks running dangerously short of coal.

Coal shortages have been reported from various parts of the province.

PUT ONE OVER

Tells How General Eisenhower Fooled Nazi Spies

London.—Lieutenant-General Eisenhower knows how to fool newspapermen as well as Nazi spies.

Two weeks before the North African offensive started, Eisenhower sent one of his aides to London stores to buy heavy clothing, and Arctic equipment was issued to several British and American fighting units.

The rumor markets buzzed, and the Nazi high command began frantic efforts to build up Norwegian defences.

The troops discarded their Arctic equipment just before sailing. But at least one war correspondent carried with him to Africa—an "Easy Guide to the Norwegian Language."

FARM MACHINERY

Construction Of New Machinery Will Be Less In 1943

London, Ont.—H. H. Bloom, administrator of farm construction machinery for the prices board, told a meeting of implement manufacturers and distributors that the 1943 output of new farm machinery in Canada will be only 25 per cent. of the 1940 tonnage.

"Provision, however," he said, "is being made for the manufacture of 150 per cent. of repair replacement parts distributed in 1940, the last normal year."

"Only the essential type of new farm machines are being built, and increased demand with limited supplies makes rationing necessary."

Allies Acquire Much Tonnage As Result Of Entry Into North Africa

London.—The ministry of economic warfare announced that the Allies had acquired between 200,000 and 300,000 tons of merchant shipping as a result of their entry into North Africa.

It said about 120,000 tons of shipping was laid up in North and West African ports, and estimated that at least a third of the tonnage which normally operates between France and North Africa—another 120,000 tons—would be taken over by the Allies.

A recruit failed to salute a captain. The captain followed him inside and demanded: "Don't you recognize the uniform?"

"Yes, sir," replied the recruit, feeling the captain's coat. "Pretty nice uniform. Look at this thing they issued me."

"Yes," said the comical young bachelor, "I have the greatest admiration for women, but I wouldn't marry one of them—not me!"

"I see," said the sweet young thing, "you not only admire women, but you have a sincere regard for their welfare."

"We'll hold your place"

IN EVERY city, town and village throughout Canada today there are gaps where once were young men. They heard a call and put on navy blue, khaki, horizon blue, and they have gone, answering a call . . .

They are missed—missed not only in their homes but also in the business places which once they filled.

They have gone from every institution in Canada; but from none more than from the chartered banks. There is hardly a branch office from coast to coast which is not today the poorer—and the prouder—for those who thus laid down their pens.

But every branch manager, as he shook parting hands, had this consolation: he could say, "We'll hold your place. It will be waiting for you when you come back. That is a pledge."

So it is the part of those who remain to serve their country in such a way that the promise may be kept: "We'll hold your place."

There were 14,433 single and married men from 18 to 45 years of age employed by the Chartered Banks at the outbreak of war, 5,053—or 35% of them had joined the armed forces by October 31st, 1942; 1,243 others who joined bank staffs since war began have also enlisted.
